Viva Forever! Spice Girls reunite for new musical

Recently the Spice Girls reunited at the opening night of a new musical in London called Viva Forever! London's Piccadilly theatre in the West End hosted the event that featured the music of the Spice Girls.

Ahead of the performance Geri Haliwell, Emma Bunton, Melanie Brown and Melanie Chisholm walked down the red carpet as a foursome. The fifth member of the girl band Victoria Beckham arrived late with her husband David Beckham and three sons due to traffic. They were joined by many celebrities including Graham Norton, Joan Collins and Cilla Black.

The musical stars newcomer Hannah John-Kamen and experienced West End star and former Eurovision entry Sally Ann Triplett. John-Kamen plays aspiring singer Viva, who along with her three friends, gets swept up in a TV talent show which turns their life upside down. The show heavily satires The X Factor, which Mel B and Geri Haliwell both appeared on earlier this year.

Speaking in the foyer of London's Piccadilly Theatre after the performance the Spice Girls said: "We're very excited about the event. We're even quite humbled by it!"

Later Geri, Emma, Mel B and Mel C jumped into a cab and headed over to the Supernova Club in London's West End for a Viva Forever after party. Victoria Beckham opted to skip the fun and instead headed home with her family.

The new musical though has left critics cold with one describing it as 'more like a clapped-out Vauxhall Viva with five careless owners and far too many miles on the clock...' Viva Forever? The critics think not!
