The 4 page 60 minute ESL British English lesson – 20/03/14

The end of Windows XP

Most of us use a computer. Its operating system will probably be a Windows based system, a Mac or Linux system.

Those of you who use a Windows based system will know the good versions and the bad ones! In the old days we used Windows 95, Windows 98, Windows 2000 and in 2001 onwards there was the highly popular Windows XP that is still used by many today. Later we saw Windows Vista, which was rapidly replaced by Windows 7. Now there is Windows 8. Many people prefer Windows 7 to Windows 8, as it is easier to use.

Microsoft is withdrawing support for Windows XP on April 8th 2014. Support for Office 2003 also ends on this day. Before that you will need to go out and buy a new operating system. If your pc is more than five years old it might be better to buy a new computer, as technology in five years has dramatically improved. If you run a business and use Windows XP it will mean the company investing in new computers and a new operating system.

If you keep your current Windows XP system running it will work but it won't get any updates, meaning you could suffer security issues. Your pc may become vulnerable to harmful viruses, spyware, and other malicious software, which can steal your business data and information.

Windows XP has been immensely popular. When Microsoft replaced it with Windows Vista they scored an own goal. Likewise many people detest Windows 8; to the point that Microsoft has been forced to update Windows 8 with Windows 8.1.

Naturally, Microsoft is rubbing its hands in glee knowing many people will be forced to buy a new operating system.
