

VW Camper Van tent set to be a hit this summer

A tent that looks like a VW Camper Van is set to be a hit at camping sites and music festivals this summer. The life size replica of the original VW Camper Van has been officially licensed by the German car manufacturer for the first time. The pop up tents each contain two zip-separated double sized rooms and provides enough sleeping space for four to five people. The tent, which is available in red, blue or yellow cost £299.99 (€340), which is a tad cheaper than the real VW Camper Van that can still sell for up to £25,000 (€28,000). It measures 398cm long, 187cm high and 155cm deep, so it's easy for most people to stand up in. The fabric roof and sides have a high waterproofing rating, ensuring it will provide an effective shelter if the summer festival season is a washout.

A spokesperson from The Monster Factory, which designed the tent said, "At a recent festival we were struck by the lack of innovation in the tent market. There was row after row of similar tents, so we decided to put our heads together to come up with something truly different. We applied our renowned product twist and the 1965 VW Camper Van was born." The spokesperson added, "Every detail is exact to the original, apart from the small matter of a lack of engine! VW Camper tents are quick to set up. Quite frankly, popping it up is idiot proof. They are incredibly roomy, comfortably sleeping four people within the two inner tents. And the generous height of the tents also makes it possible to stand up inside, which is invaluable when dressing in your festival finest or sheltering from a rainy British summer's day."

John Rawlings from Volkswagen: "The VW Camper Van has become the ultimate style icon and is still highly popular with surfers, festival-goers and adventure lovers. Producing a tent that looks like one is a brilliant idea. It looks as cool as the real thing."

VW Camper Vans ceased being made in Europe in the 70s. However, they are still produced in South America. The camper van remains highly popular across Europe today. Having a new camper van tent is sure to make you the envy of the campsite. You never know, the new VW Camper tents could become as iconic as the van itself!
