The 4 page 60 minute ESL British English lesson – 25/10/14

What do you collect?

What do you collect? It's an interesting question that no doubt has many interesting answers...

You might collect matchboxes or different hats. Some people like to collect dolls or beer mats. Frankly the list is endless. Most people these days probably have a dusty collection of CDs and DVDs as the digital age takes over. Many people might still have a pile of old records or cassettes sitting in their attic.

Some folk collect bus tickets; others ornamental ducks or hippopotamuses. Stamp collecting used to be a popular pastime, as was picture postcard collecting. Boys used to collect old coins or Lego. Girls used to collect dolls. Today youngsters like to collect friends on Facebook, as well as apps on mobiles.

While there are all sorts of interesting things to collect this lesson simply explores a few of them. Some more examples include watches, clocks, and coffee mugs. Many people like collecting books. Others might have a collection of sea shells, toy cars or even beer glasses.

Older people tend to collect antiques. They go to car boot sales in the UK to hunt out the bargains. My old neighbour used to collect different shaped Buddhas, as well as different sized bells. My mother collected plants for her conservatory.

People do collect some very odd things, for example, different leaves or piles of pillowcases. Some folk collect buttons or old and new toys. These days we all seem to collect mobile phones and their multi-sized plug in connectors.

At the other end of the scale while many rich men like to collect fast cars and women, rich women prefer clothes, shoes and jewellery. Sometimes they just collect new husbands!
